Voter Support on Ohio Becoming a “Right-to-Work” State

As you may know, Ohio is not a “right-to-work” state. In a “right-to-work” state, workers are not required to join a union – or pay dues or fees to a union – as a condition of employment. States that have passed “right to work” laws do not prevent workers from voluntarily joining a union, and it does not change any existing labor agreements between workers and businesses. Knowing this information, would you support or oppose Ohio becoming a “right to work” state?
